

Mile High Wildlife Photography Club

December 2006 Volume 30, Issue 12

An End to a Dynamic Year

by Frank Weston

This is our last meeting for 2006. This past year has proven to be a year transition for Mile High Wildlife Photography Club. Under the leadership of Ron Eberhart, the club has gone through quite a growth process, but not without its share of growing pains. Throughout the year, the club has experienced highs and lows.

Change of Focus

Early in the year, NANPA's Twelfth Annual Nature Photography Summit was held here in Denver. Ron Eberhart had two of his photos displayed at the conference.

Shortly thereafter, the club began a major change in the club's focus. The club members voted to begin accepting digital images for the monthly competitions. Not all members supported the change and the club struggled for several months with this potentially divisive subject, but at the end of the year, digital images had been accepted and now make up the more than half of the competition entries.

An offshoot of accepting digital images was the revision of the competition rules. In keeping with the club's venture into digital competitions, the rules were modified to allow certain amounts of digital manipulation. The rules were also simplified, reducing the number of categories to four.

Highs

Long-time club member, Cathy Illg, was one of an elite group of world-reknoned nature photographers selected to compete in the ICF Pro-Tour of Nature Photography. Cathy finished third in this extraordinary competition.

The Wildlife Experience once again invited MHWPC to exhibit its finest images in the Community Gallery.

Twenty-two of the club's best photographs were and still are on display.

One of Russ Burden's individual shots received top honors in the Backyard Habitat Category of Nature's Best annual competition.

The club is also in the process of getting a new webpage. Instead of the Yahoo group webpage that we've had for many years, the club is designing its own webpage.

Lows

The club entry into Nature Best annual competition once again failed to make the top the three. As usual, we just missed placing in this competition.

Personnel Changes

A few key personnel have changed during the course of the year. Kathy Nolasco stepped down as the club Treasurer, to be replaced by Patrick Devereaux.

Kathy and Len Lingo have stepped down as club librarians. Betsy Lamb has taken over this responsibility.

And of course, the monthly competitions have shown the depth of talent in this club. I do not envy the judges who have to decide which photo is the best. Interspersed throughout this month's newsletter are the editor's favorites and do not reflect how they finished in any competition. They are presented simply for your enjoyment.

At The Last Meeting...

Gordon and Cathy Illg gave us a sometimes humorous, sometimes discouraging, but definitely insightful look into the life of a professional photographer during their ICF competition last spring. Although professional photography may be fun, there are probably more times when it's boring, miserable, hard work—just like any other job.

December Potluck

December is our annual holiday potluck. The meeting will start at 6:30 pm instead of our usual 7:00 pm. The potluck will be held in the Community Gallery, where our exhibit is still on display. Everyone is asked to bring a dish to share. The club will provide meat, plates, napkins, utensils, and drinks. TWE requests that all food and drink be closed and covered on your way up to the Gallery.

Kudos

The majority of the work in keeping the club functional is handled by a small number of people. It's not because running the club only takes a small number of people, it's because these volunteers do an inordinate amount of work. This places a very large burden on a few that could be much more easily borne by many. Take a moment to recognize these dedicated people who make time in their busy schedules to keep MHW a great club.

If I've missed anyone, please accept my sincerest apology and my heartfelt gratitude. I also extend a warm thank-you to all the hospitality volunteers throughout the year and to those who covered when there weren't any volunteers.

Braggin' Rights

Fi Rust doesn't like to brag, but there are several of us who insist on braggin' for her. Fi has two photos published in Smithsonian.

Russ and Nick Burden will have a small blurb in the Winter issue of Nature's Best magazine highlighting an up coming article due in the Spring issue. The Winter issue will feature one of Nick's shots from Arches National Park.

Frank Weston has an article on shooting in stormy weather along with several photos published in this month's Outdoor Photographer.

MHWPC Webpage

The beginnings of a new club webpage are taking shape. This isn't simply a chat group, but a real, bona fide web site. You can see the beginnings of our webpage at www.MHWPC.org. What you see so far is due to the efforts of members James Hager and Anne Hughes who volunteered their services when Ron suggested we create our own website. Take moment to check it out. If you have any suggestions for the webpage (layout, content, colors scheme, etc.) please forward them to Ron Eberhart. And don't forget to thank James and Anne for efforts on the club's behalf.

And Another One of My Favorite Places is...

For many of us, we each have favorite places which we have found to be full of rich photographic treasures. Most of us are also always looking for more such places to practice our vocation or avocation. This is a call for club members to share some information on your favorite places so that all of us can enjoy them, as well. This would become a regular column in the newsletter and would include location, special considerations, type of photographs available (flowers, landscapes, wildlife, etc.), and directions.

Since the purpose is report on places available for everyone, let's try to limit them to the continental U.S. for now. Maybe later, we can expand to "my favorite international places". Also, let's see if we can report on the out-of-the-way places not reported in every tourist and photo guide to the country. It doesn't have to be expensive or famous to a favorite place.

Some ideas to include in a report would be:

- why it is special
- state and county names, as well as other commonly used names for the area (i.e.,: Blanco Basin, Archuleta County, Colorado)
- a couple of sample photos (these don't have to be competition quality, but should show some examples of what a person could expect to see there)
- a simple map, or links to Google Maps or Mapquest
- directions and distances to nearby towns including highway numbers and key turnoffs
- distance and time from Denver
- special considerations such as weather, road conditions, traffic, crowd reports, best time of day/year, special equipment to bring, fees, and what not to miss
- your name and POC information in case someone has additional questions

Please submit them to Frank Weston in the normal manner for inclusion in the newsletter. Hopefully, we'll have enough submissions to run one each month.
